

Welcome

Welcome to the Town of Guilderland Community Gardens, an organic garden, located in Albany County in the Capital Region of New York State, USA. The gardens are situated in Tawasentha Park on Route 146, ½ mile west of and on the opposite side of the road from the main entrance to the park.

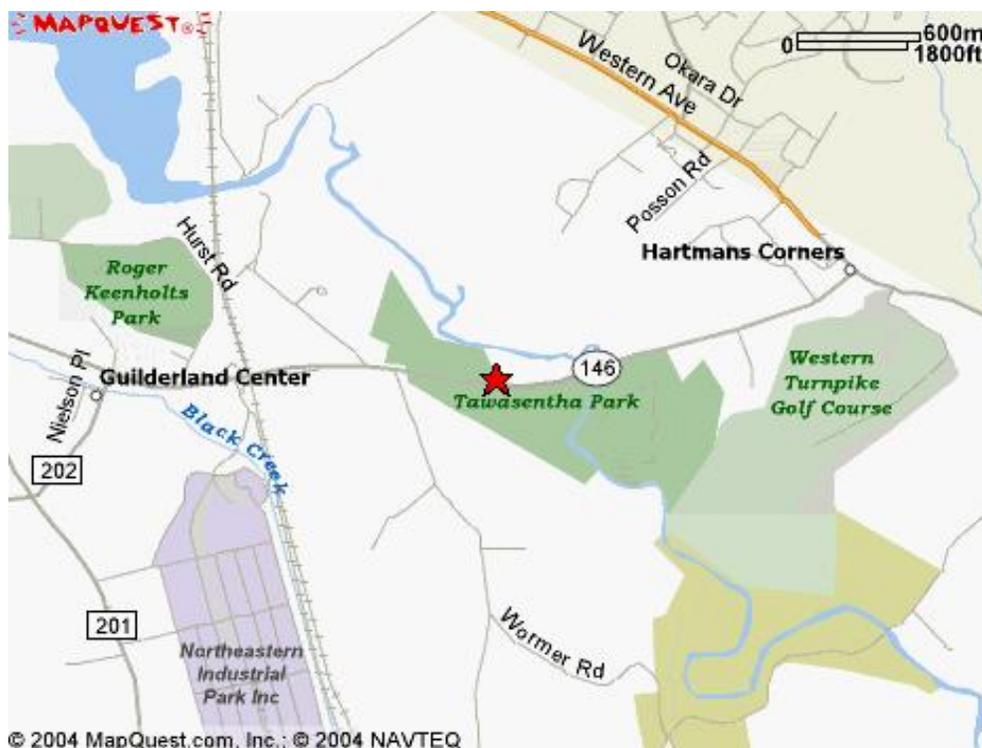

The gardens were first cultivated in 1989 and consisted of 15 garden lots that were made available to residents of the Town of Guilderland. Today, the gardens have expanded to over 110 garden lots enjoyed by more than 80 Guilderland gardeners and their families. Garden lots are available in a variety of sizes to meet each gardener's need; most lots are approximately 690 sq. feet. (62 sq. meters)

The gardeners cultivate a wide variety of fruits, flowers and vegetables for family, friends and for those in need.

The gardens also include an two apiaries, bluebird houses, the historic Houck barn, a pond - Peace Pond – occasionally stocked with Triploid Grass Carp (not to mention an occasional beaver), a 768 sq. ft. hoop house (71.3 sq. meters), four raptor perches and a gardeners' pavilion and picnic area available for use by all residents of the Town.

Membership in the community gardens is available to all residents of the Town of Guilderland. There is a modest charge per year for each garden lot. Gardeners are required to maintain an orderly garden free of excess weeds and to comply with the gardens' Rules of the Row.

We look forward to hearing from you!
