This email is to express my support for the Costco development project. I have been a tax paying resident of Guilderland for approximately 10 years. As such, I believe that this would be a revenue producer which could provide tax relief to over taxed property owners of this town. Although this will increase traffic and further burden an already stressed highway infrastructure the potential tax revenue is necessary to offset the increased costs associated with continued expansions to Fire, paramedic and police services. These expansions are directly related to the mismanagement of residential development in this town. Town officials need to look at ways to rezone undeveloped land for industrial and business instead of permitting new housing developments that further deplete our already over stressed services.

Sincerely,

Jeffery Hale
